

Advancing and empowering Women in Government Relations

WGR is the premier, non-partisan professional society for women and men who make strides every day in shaping public policy, including government relations and public affairs professionals, and we aim to provide a platform for professionals to:

1. Build a Community

WGR is dedicated to fostering connections, bringing together the best and brightest, and creating an environment that enhances personal and professional development. Pushing you further than even your best network, WGR empowers you to build your own community by creating a space where government relations professionals can foster strong relationships, exchange thoughts and ideas, and learn from one another's experiences.

2. Elevate your Career

Formed with a vision to create generations of powerful female advocates, WGR provides leadership and mentoring opportunities, networking events, and professional development to encourage, enrich and foster growth for professional women in government relations. We believe in providing women with the resources and opportunities to advance and develop in their careers, ultimately becoming tomorrow's leaders.

3. Find your Team

At WGR, you're one of hundreds of members working together to understand and solve the biggest challenges we face today. We are a team of professionals, standing shoulder-to-shoulder, exchanging ideas and implementing change through innovation. It is our intention to create a space where diversity and inclusion are valued and where anyone can thrive.

4. Keep on Growing

There are always new opportunities at WGR to add value to your membership, to grow personally and professionally, and to make an impact on your community and on your peers. WGR promotes diversity and inclusion, mentoring, shared experiences, and making connections. We are a group of women helping women and we constantly strive to inspire confidence for generations to come.

5. Create One Voice, with Your Voice

We've heard it before, and we're witnessing it now more than ever: there is strength in numbers. We believe in the power and influence of the trailblazing women in Washington, D.C. who work every day to move us forward. We pride ourselves on connecting women in government relations – from interns to CEOs to members of Congress and everywhere in between – and facilitating an open dialogue that will allow our members to make a lasting impact. WGR is for women. By women. None of this would be possible without our dedicated volunteers, our staff, our sponsors and our members. We are so grateful the role that each of you play in Raising Our Voice.
